MILLS & BOON

Time Period: Medieval

Innocent bride or treacherous temptress?

As the nobility jostles for the new King's favour, Maddy is all alone. Landless and friendless, she is now beginning to suspect that someone wants her dead...So she accepts a bridegroom she has never met, intending to find peace at home.

But peace is in short supply when Maddy marries Sir Geraint, a powerful protector and a passionate man. Fiercely loyal to the King, Geraint cannot trust his Yorkist bride - but neither can he resist her innocent temptation!

RAH's THOUGHTS AND PONDERINGS:

MY LADY INNOCENT is a sweeping historical romance that, right from the very first page, captured my heart and emotions. It is a swift-moving story, filled with so many vivid descriptions, painstaking details and realistic dialogue that I felt pulled back in time.

Illustrating the idea that sometimes first meetings and initial impressions aren't meant to be taken too seriously, the initial coming together of hero and heroine in this story is hardly romantic. In fact, it may be one of the least auspicious meetings I've seen! Sir Geraint calls Maddy "an empty-headed little trollop"—and the pair takes it from there! Together they make their way past ambush, plotting and deception, thwarting those who would use Maddy for their own devices, to find the one thing they both desire most—the one thing most people yearn for—peace.

Annie Burrows' MY LADY INNOCENT is a heartwarming love story. Engaging, entertaining and illuminating, it is one historical romance that I will read time and again. Bravo!
